‘This collection adds meaning to the study of contemporary China. It is an essential companion to the standard textbooks for the survey courses. I would go even further and seriously consider it as an alternative text.’ - Robert Benewick, University of Sussex

‘China’s widely reported economic success has stimulated a wide-ranging and increasingly contentious debate in both the academic and popular literature...Professor Tubilewicz’s volume provides the necessary information for undergraduates to understand the debate and to learn how to ask the right questions. Written in very clear and accessible language, it should provoke lively class discussions over the challenges China faces during the first part of the 21st century.’ - Stanley Rosen, University of Southern California

‘This is a timely addition to the literature on China’s current societal stresses and challenges...[The book] is a highly useful, well-crafted survey of the progress and pitfalls of China’s “peaceful rise.”’ - Richard Baum, UCLA

‘Critical Issues in Contemporary China provides a timely reminder of the many issues facing China’s leaders today.’ - John P. Burns, The University of Hong Kong

Critical Issues in Contemporary China offers up-to-date and in-depth coverage of the social, political and economic problems facing contemporary China. It provides students with a comprehensive analysis of a number of key issues including:

- * the privatisation of China’s economy and social services
- * regional economic inequalities
- * environmental problems
- * population growth and food security
- * ethnic minorities
- * social change
- * social and economic inequalities
- * cross-strait relations with Taiwan

By examining the three interrelated themes of stability, sustainable development and territorial integrity, the contributors raise important questions regarding the Chinese Communist Party’s capacity to continue fast paced economic development and maintain the territorial unity of China. Critical Issues in Contemporary China is both accessible and informative, with a number of useful pedagogical features that will equip undergraduates with the analytical skills needed to assess the political, economic and social challenges surrounding China as it enters the twenty-first century.
